Chi Rho Has Dr. Speigner For Speaker

Dr. Theodore R. Speigner, head of the Department of Geography at North Carolina College, will be guest speaker for Chi Rho tomorrow. The 1:30 meeting will be the last time Chi Rho will gather this year.

Dr. Speigner was a special theology student under the direction of Capital University and an appointed committee of the American Lutheran church. A Negro, he is the second man of his race to be ordained into the ministry of the American Lutheran Church.

In addition to his special theological diploma, Pastor Speigner holds B.A., M.A., and LL.D. degrees. The LL.D. was conferred to him by Luther College, Decorah. He is an author of several publications and has written for several professional magazines.

Dr. Speigner holds positions as vice chairman of the Board of American Lutheran Missions and secretary of the National Lutheran Committee on Inter-Race Relations. He currently holds membership in the American Association of University Professors and the American Educational Research Association.

He will speak at convo Tuesday and will be the Monday evening chapel speaker.

Pi Sigma Frolics Has 'Les Wartburg Girls'

Pi Sigma's annual spring frolics, "Les Wartburg Girls," will be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m. in Knights Gym, according to soph Karen Nagen, chairman of the event.

Approximately fifty girls will take part in the musical review which will depict the life of a Wartburg coed through one school year. The variety show will include singing, dancing, record pantomime and comedy. Admission is 25 cents.

Orchestra Gives Concert Sunday

Classical music will be on the stage of Knights Gym tomorrow evening when the Wartburg Community Symphony presents its spring concert at 8.

According to Ernest Hagen, symphony conductor, the program will feature the noted American 'cellist Bert Philips who will perform the concerto for 'cello and orchestra by Boccherini. Also featured will be the Wartburg Castle Singers who will perform Grieg's "Landsighting" with the orchestra.

Other numbers include works by Berlioz, Ives and Brahms. There will be no admission.

Trumpet Awarded First Class Rate

First Class—that is the rating of the Trumpet the first semester by the Associated Collegiate Press.

This year's Trumpet scored a total of 3,310 points, but needed a 3,500 to win an All-American rating. Judging was done this year by Duane Andrews, a member of the Public Relations staff of Minneapolis Honeywell Corporation.

Prom, Banquet Dine 'N Dance Tonight

Parents Pay Visit

MARCIA KAHL and Phil Moeller help Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Matthias of Denver register during yesterday's Parents Day. Over 120 parents visited the campus.

Moehl Featured Speaker; Rockets To Make Music

By Ed Schaley

Dining by candlelight and dancing amid peppermint fantasies are the atmospheric conditions accompanying this evening's annual Junior-Senior banquet and prom.

* * * * *

Miss Erna Moehl

Heading the banquet agenda, Miss Erna Moehl of the Wartburg English department will reminisce with "Pages from Two Diaries," an authoritated recollection of student life at two Wartburg Colleges, Wartburg present, and the old, towering edifice at Clinton.

St. Paul's Parish House is the scene for the dinner fare, open to Juniors and Seniors, with approximately 200 banqueters expected to enjoy the festivities, scheduled to start at 6:30 p.m.

Prom In Gym

Directly following the upperclass affair, juniors and seniors will be hosts for an all-school prom, "The Peppermint Fantasy," to be held in Knights Gymnasium.

Amidst candy canes, students will twirl to the music of "The Rockets," an eight-man aggregation from Albert Lea, Minn. The Rockets have offered to play request numbers, and are expected to offer variety, as each member of the outfit can double on other instruments.

Expect Three Hundred

Last year's prom drew more than three hundred participants, and this year's event is expected to reach that mark easily, according to advance ticket sales.

Tickets for dancing will be sold at the door, however, and the actual number may reach record size. Price per person is $1.50.

Will Last Until 1

Music will continue until 1 a.m. The extra half-hour has been added in accord with the 1:30 hours admitted to promgirls at this once-a-year event.

Busy man on campus, John Pavelka, junior, publicity chairman for this year's banquet and prom, wishes to thank all juniors and seniors, plus others, who have helped to make this year's extravaganza a success.

WIVES HELP EDUCATE

Busy Life In Trailer Court

By Darwin Schrage

Have you ever tried to hold down a job, attend classes, study and fulfill the role of parent each day of the school term? That's nothing unusual for students living in the trailer court.

A typical example of this situation would be found in the life of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Shinn, of the college trailer court.

Shinn Works Full Week

"Ron works approximately thirty hours each week, in addition to attending classes and fulfilling the role of a parent," stated Mrs. Shinn. "With both of us working, life sometimes becomes perplexing, but I believe it just depends on the individual. For some people it would be easy and for others it would be hard."

One member of each family in the trailer court, and possibly two, hold some kind of job with the resulting income directed toward education and living costs.

"It's difficult to plan a time to get together with another family," complained one trailer court resident. The fact that many of the residents have such varied schedules, limits the interaction among members of the trailer court.

Jobs Are Varied

Some of the jobs held are supermarket clerk, milk company employee, college custodian, chef and teacher. Recognition must be given to the wives who provide a major portion of the income in certain families. Without this supplement, gaining an education might be improbable, if not impossible.

Monday at the trailer court may occur on any day of the week—if Monday is referred to as washday. Almost every day will find someone washing in the centrally located building which contains the facilities provided by the college. Two washers and two dryers are furnished, which the residents may use without charge.

WHILE HIS WIFE dries dishes, trailerite Ray Ideus, senior, catches up on a Christianity assignment.

* * * * * * * * * *

Trailers Out In Time

"It's a good thing those three trailers were moved," mused senior Ken Freeman. "They would sure look funny in the bottom of that hole."

Freeman, court jester, was referring to the three trailers which were moved to permit the construction of the new library. Until the last few weeks, the scenery around the trailer court was fairly commendable, but since the "ground-breaking" for the new library began, the scenery has shifted considerably.

Court Will Move

Because of needed library space, the trailer court will eventually be moved to another place. According to college officials, the present court will be moved to its new site next year, after the city has provided needed sewer connections.

Dean Earnest Oppermann stated that the new plans for the trailer court include a street in front of the trailers to allow adequate parking for autos and easy entrance and exit for trailer court traffic.

Mobile Homes Planned

Mobile homes will be placed in pairs with space provided between each pair for a firebreak.

Living in a trailer is an educational and gratifying experience. Many families consider their trailer only a temporary home, while others are considering it a permanent venture, but all would agree with this gist of Edgar Guest that "It takes a heap of livin', but a trailer can be a home!"

Wartburg To Share In Industry Money

Iowa College Foundation received $18,000 from the U. S. Steel Foundation. Wartburg is a member of the college foundation, which includes 18 private schools.

The gift was a part of the Foundation's aid-to-education program for 1958. Two million dollars will be given to 655 schools in the United States by the company.

Brotherhood Awards Go To Two Seniors

Two Wartburg juniors will receive $300 Lutheran Brotherhood scholarships for the coming year. Receiving the awards will be Dennis Dickman, Garnavillo, and Barbara Aslakson, Marshfield, Wis.

Each year the Lutheran Brotherhood Insurance Company, Minneapolis, Minn., awards scholarships to outstanding students on all Lutheran college campuses. This year's winners at Wartburg were Valeria Gerlt and Erwin Janssen.

Intellectualism-Going Down?

One of the attributes of a liberal arts college should be an emphasis on maintaining an intellectual atmosphere. This should be done both inside and outside the classroom.

In the Wartburg classrooms, there has been a definite indication that this is true. However, it is not so outside of the classroom. There's little on the campus to provide an opportunity for intellectual development.

In fact, there has been a decided trend in the opposite direction. How so? Chiefly in two different areas.

One, the lecture series which existed on the campus for several years prior to this one. Two, informal lectures in Fuchs Lounge, sponsored by the Student Union Council.

Today neither of these two series is in existence. Why not? The lecture series which had been sponsored by the Artist Series was dropped because it lost money. The union lectures were stopped because of a lack of interest.

At present, the Student Senate's Academic Life Committee is taking steps attempting to revive the lecture series. Although the committee's efforts are commendable, this is not the proper group to sponsor such an activity.

Such an activity should be sponsored in the same manner as is the Artist Series. And it should be financed the same way — through the activity fee.

If the college charges each student $12 per year for athletics, there is certainly no reason why a fee of $1 can not be charged for an academic-related program of this type.

A small increase in the activity fee would produce a sum large enough to enable a sponsoring committee to obtain three or four numbers each year. The exact type of program would have to be determined by a committee.

As for the Union lectures, the SMU Council is ready to renew this series whenever the demand arises. Experience has shown that usually when a good event is scheduled, a sufficient number of students will attend.

Such an informal program should be revived. With sufficient planning and competent publicity, a series of this type would be beneficial to the intellectual atmosphere of the Wartburg campus.

If Wartburg is to fulfill the functions of a true liberal arts institution, it must consider the entire program, not merely some of the segments.

Editor Finally Takes Rest; Students Get Fortresses

ADMIRING THE FORTRESS, editor Len Flachman relaxes at his desk in the Publications House.

* * * * * * * * * *

By Larry Everett

"The yearbooks are here!"

"They can't be — they're not supposed to be here for a week."

This was the familiar cry heard this week when the 1958 Fortresses arrived on the Wartburg campus. Who was the editor of this early arrival? Leonard Flachman, senior pre-theological student.

Flachman is from West Burlington, where, in high school, he first became interested in publications. After working on the high school annual for two years, he was chosen associate editor of the yearbook his final year.

Arriving on the Wartburg campus four years ago, Len made the Fortress his major extracurricular activity. Since then, it has become a hobby with him, working as associate editor in his sophomore and junior years, and editor in chief his senior year.

Would he edit the Fortress again?

"It is a lot of hard work and your schoolwork suffers, but it gives an opportunity to do something in your spare time, and, like all extra-curricular activities, you learn a great deal," commented Flachman.

Commending this year's staff, Editor Flachman stated, "We didn't pull any all-nighters, we met our deadlines on time, and we had good cooperation from all of the yearbook staff, as well as from the Waverly Publishing Co. and the bindery. This is the reason the '58 book came as early as it did. The hardest job this year," he continued, "was to get students to have their individual pictures taken."

Now that this year's production is distributed among the students, and the "blood, sweat and tears" of the 1958 Fortress are history, he plans to catch up on his studies.

What about the future? Well, journalistic plasma seems to be flowing in Leonard's veins, for the time being, anyway. Next fall he plans to work part-time for the Wartburg Press, Columbus, Ohio, where he will be affiliated with the Sunday School feature papers.

At the same time, Flachman will attend Capital Seminary, working toward a B.D. degree. After graduation from the seminary, Leonard plans to enter the parish ministry.

Coeds Clarify Letter; Slander Not Intended

To the Editor:

Apologies are in order to any single group who thought our last letter was directed at them. We did not mean to step on anybody's toes.

It seems as if the point of the letter was misinterpreted. It was mainly directed at students who do not think for themselves, rather than at the overactive thinkers on campus.

We also wish to thank Dr. Becker for answering our letter at the Student Body meeting Thursday. We regret that many of the students who reacted most violently toward our previous letter were not there.

A note to all students—try to make next year's government everyone's government by being part of it.

The Three Coeds

The Trumpet received several letters this week which it would like to print. However, the writers of the letters did not sign their names.

While the Trumpet will withhold names upon request, letters must be signed when handed into the paper.

Yes, it was a good Outfly. So good in fact that this columnist missed his first deadline in three years. With the help of the staff, however, Knight Beat was in the paper as usual.

People, who were obviously indoctrinated by members of the Trumpet, have been giving me back-bending praise for the fine column last week.

I've gotten that "you're replaceable, boy" feeling lately. Last week the staff wrote Knight Beat and next week, next year's columnist will take over. I hope my entire spy system will work as hard for him next year as it did for me.

We had another successful Senior Day this year. Senior Day — that's when all the male Wartburgers get a chance to meet all the good-looking high school girls who are going to the State University of Iowa next year.

To rid America of the present recession, Ike says to go out and buy something. So in order to keep the makers of maternity dresses from going broke, American women have been flocking to the stores to buy one whether they need it or not.

Of course, they call them "sacks," but who can tell the difference? The only time I've ever seen a girl who looked good in a sack is the time Marilyn Monroe posed for a publicity shot for the Idaho Potato Growers Association.

I can brag about the Cubs this year. Even if they do slip at mid-season this time, I won't be around to eat my words. The Cubs were so bad one year that one Chicago sports writer voted Bert Wilson, their radio announcer, as the team's most valuable player.

The Cubs lost money last year for the first time, and a lot of people said it was because Bert wasn't around to make them sound good. Talk about spirit — some of his announcing went like this (admittedly with slight exaggeration): "Here it is, fans, the last of the ninth. The Cubs are behind 10-0 and have two outs with the pitcher batting. Come on, Cubs, let's get some runs!"

It's nice that the Public Relations Department has Senior Day and Parents Day only two days apart. That way, if you sleep on the floor and don't change clothes for two days, your room can look nice for both open houses without too much bother. My idea of sneaky parents are the ones who open the door to your closet.

If the students who are always complaining about the social life on campus go home this weekend, they should have their heads examined. For some of us, today will be a conglomeration of Outfly, Thanksgiving, the Fourth of July and New Year's Eve.

Norse Invade Diamond In Crucial Test

Oppiemen Must Conquer To Stay In Contention

By Martin Matthias

The Iowa Conference race grows tighter as Wartburg hosts its long time rival, Luther, this afternoon at 1:30.

Knight victory is essential if Wartburg is to stay alive in the three-team duel for the conference title. With Iowa Wesleyan's double-win over Parsons this week, and Wartburg's win over Upper Iowa, the title chances rest with either Wartburg, Upper Iowa or Simpson.

Pitching Shake-Up

According to Head Coach, Earnest Oppermann, Wartburg may be required to take a closer look at pitching. With Oppermann's plans to save Fred Jaspers for Tuesday's Upper Iowa games and Marv Ott's recent wrist injury, Arlyn Saathoff, another capable starting pitcher, may start.

Earlier this season the Knights dumped the Norsemen 7-3 as they clobbered the hurling of Luther's ace pitchers, Crider and Bachman. The Wartburg nine are in a good position to repeat that performance.

Peacocks Racked

In Wednesday's play, visiting seniors saw the Knights pluck the Peacocks of Upper Iowa 11-6. Jaspers made it his 22nd victory while Kuehner of Upper Iowa took the loss.

Roger Zehr, sophomore catcher, and Darrol Bauer, freshman rightfielder, accounted for triples, adding the needed runs to the Wartburg scoreboard. Buhr, Peacock left-fielder, slammed a triple in the third inning—the fifth saw his teammate Klunder slam the only home run of the game.

Close To First

Final action of the game brought Wartburg within a few percentage points of a first-place tie with Upper Iowa.

In last Saturday's doubleheader with Parsons the Knights dropped the first game 6-5 and went on to grab a win in the second 11-5.

Jaspers took the first game defeat giving up three hits and fanning eight. Parsons' pitcher, Towne, won honors after risking seven hits and striking out six Knights.

Club Ten Hits

In the second game, Wartburg batters clubbed 12 hits, including a homer by Darwin Fritz. Arlyn Saathoff got credit for the win when he held Parsons to five runs on 10 hits. Greenwood, Parsons pitcher, fanned three and walked two, while Saathoff struck out two and walked none.

Wartburg will travel to Upper Iowa Tuesday for what is expected to be one of the more important games in deciding a pennant winner. Should the Knights win their next two outings, they will occupy first place.

Thinsuits Tracking Norse

By Phil Moeller

Knight thinclads, in their final competition before the conference meet, travel to Decorah this afternoon to challenge the Norskies.

Luther stunned Moco Mercer's Dubuque forces earlier this week in the conference upset of the year.

Knight cindermen repeated last year's performance in the all-Lutheran Viking Olympics, finishing a strong third behind St. Olaf and Luther at Rock Island, Ill., last Saturday.

Streng Wins

Three impressive firsts led the Knight scoring. Another fine performance was turned in by Bill Streng in the 440-yard dash, re-setting the meet record at :50.6. This not only stands as Streng's best winning effort to date, but also marks his first conquest of Luther's ace Rod Ellickson.

Bill Riggle romped home with another of the Knight firsts, his winning time in the 880-yard run — 2:03. Both Riggle and Streng ran on the mile-relay team, which brought home an important second for the Knight cause.

Bose Gets First

The final Knight first came in the 220-yard low hurdles, as ace Nelson Bose churned out the distance in a time of :25.5.

Knight dashman Eddie Skay placed second in both the 100 and 220 yard dashes, in two close finishes. Versatile Andy Polis placed in three of his favorite events: the high jump, javelin throw, and pole vault.

Dump Loras

Campbell's crew defeated Loras 93-38 in a dual meet, here Wednesday, in one of the Senior Day features.

Frosh dashman Eddie Skay led Knight scoring, winning firsts in the 100 yard dash and the broad jump, and finishing a close second to teammate Bill Streng in the 220 yard dash.

Streng was also a winner in the 440 yard dash and rounded out his afternoon activities by anchoring Wartburg's winning mile relay quartet.

Polis Gets Eleven

The eleven points picked up by Andy Polis came on a first in the high jump, and on seconds in the javelin throw and the pole vault. The Campbellmen dazzled the Duhawks by scoring sweeps in the pole vault, the high jump, and in both dashes.

Lamoine Jacobs just missed coach Campbell's college record in the pole vault, but did win the event with a vault of 11'4". The record still stands at 11'6". Jacobs also placed second in the broadjump.

Golfers Clubbed; At Luther Today

Wartburg's golf team will be trying to recover from a 14-1 pasting at the hands of Loras College when the linksters face Luther College at the Decorah Country Club this afternoon.

The golfers will be bidding for a double win over the Norskies, having defeated Luther here earlier this season. A victory for the Knights would contribute valuable points in Wartburg's quest for the traditional traveling trophy — the Axe. Luther won the trophy last year.

Last Saturday the Jomen were hoping to bring their record up to 4-4, but were stopped by Loras in their poorest exhibition of the year. Sophomore Gary Hummel was the only Knight to break into the scoring column.

Knights Dumped In Three Meets

After being dumped three times within a week, Wartburg's tennis squad will go after its second win of the season this afternoon when they host Simpson College netmen.

The racketeers failed to win a match yesterday at Decorah, getting shutout 9-0 by the powerful Norse squad.

Last Saturday the Knights dropped a 5-2 match to Loras College at Dubuque. The Axmen played the Duhawks to three sets in every match but couldn't win the close points. Seniors Earl Himmeger and Les Huth won their singles matches for the only Wartburg points.

The Knights split the first four singles matches for the only Wartburg points.

The Knights split the first four singles contests with Iowa State Teachers College Wednesday afternoon at Waverly but the netsters were jolted in the next two matches, and lost their second dual meet of the year.

Volleyball Ends In Close Finish

Bill Streng's volleyball team was overhauled in the final three nights of competition as the IM season ended in a three-way tie for first.

Teams of John Melhaus and Dave Jensen will tangle with Streng's outfit in the forthcoming play-offs.

IM's bridge tourney also ended in a tie. The two partnerships tying for first will also meet in a playoff — Rebelein-Michels and Chellevold-Moeller.

According to IM chairman, Fred Jaspers, a full schedule of spring activities will be offered during the final three weeks of school.

Let's Meet Friends

Hi!

Hold out for three more weeks and you'll have completed the amazing feat of ending a year at Wartburg. Actually it's not that bad — until you try being a columnist.

• • • •

Tonight is the night of chiffon and lace. The Spring Prom is being held in Knights Gym at 9. Preceding, at St. Paul's Parish Hall, is the Junior-Senior Banquet. That affair begins at 6:30. And I hear it is by candlelight!

• • • •

Sunday finds Chi Rho meeting at 1:30 in the Fine Arts Center to hear Dr. Theodore R. Speigner, ordained American Lutheran Negro pastor.

Picnic is the order of the day for Business Student Association members. They are asked to meet at 1:30 Sunday for a jaunt to Heery's Woods.

Statistics have it that Mission Fellowship meets this Tuesday, 7:30 in Wartburg Hall Lounge. President Herb Hafermann didn't verify it, however.

• • • •

Phebes have a picnic scheduled for 5:30 that evening at Riverside Park. Next year's officers will be elected.

• • • •

And that sounds like the agenda for the WAA picnic the following night at 6:15. Tickets will be available, at the low, low price of 50 cents, in the caf line Monday.

Pi Sigma Frolics go on stage in Knights Gym at 8 Wednesday night. The girls have a good show planned ranging from cha-cha to goodness knows what. It'll cost only 25 cents at the door.
